Complementary Overhead Assessment

Now is the time to start preparing for your 2017 finances. Are your overhead expenses too high? You don't know unless you do the math! Accounting programs, such as QuickBooks, offer detailed information on overhead expenses (and more) so that you can compare your numbers with industry standards. This is the first step in creating "healthy overhead" for your practice. Let me help guide you in determining your expenses and financial goals. Give me a call at (847) 650-4531 today!

Hidden Assets at Year's End

If you have open appointments in your schedule through the end of the year, now is the time to take action to fill those spots! Remind your patients who are due for hygiene visits or have unfinished dental treatment that they may have outstanding insurance benefits which will be lost come Jan. 1st. Reports yielding this information are typically run through your practice management system. At the very least, you can send a broad email message to your patients or post on your social media accounts. For assistance in this or other income-producing endeavors, contact me at Jeanne@giodentalconsulting.com.

Gratitude

As we move toward Thanksgiving, there's a more heightened sense of gratitude. Just a reminder, be sure to thank your patients and team members for making your practice possible. And I would like to thank my clients for letting me help with their practice goals. It's an honor to be a part of your teams! Have wonderful holidays, and here's to a happy, healthy and prosperous 2017!
